WORKS,

Once more the hopes of doctors and pakients alike have been roused by a case of the apperunt cure of cancer. Dr. Harper, the President of the Chicago University, was operated on for a cancerous growth. It was declared to be irremovable, and he was document to death by the surgeons. But since then he has been treated with a combination of radium and the X-rays, and the results are said to be marvelloss. He hisself considers that he is cured. Of course, there is as yet no guarantee that the cure is permanent. Fiven it it growed to be so, many more trials and investigations will be nocessary before any systematic method of ours applicable to all cancer cause can be formulated with any confidence. But the case is a stifficiently remarkable one to provide at any rate a substructure of hope that the first vand blow has been struck at the disease.
